Brutality of the Israeli Occupation Army

- The Israeli Occupation Army (IOA) arrested resident Lu'ai Younis Bani Odeh (22 years) from Tammun village east of Tubas city at Za'tara checkpoint. Wafa (April 12, 2012).
- The Israeli Occupation Army (IOA) gave residents Muhamamd Jameel Yousif Jaber and Amer Ahmad Dabak notifications to interview the Israeli Intelligence Police at Salem Military camp after raiding their houses in Tayaseer village and messing with their contents. Wafa (April 12, 2012).

Israeli Settlers' violence

- A number of Palestinian farmers from Yanun village southeast of Nablus city were injured as a number of Israeli settlers attacked them under the eyesight of the Israeli Occupation Army (IOA). Wafa (April 12, 2012).

Others

- Israel's government is scrambling to find ways to save some of the unauthorized West Bank settlements it once promised to dismantle, including some that are built partly on private Palestinian land. The new strategy seeks to retroactively legalize some outposts and, in other cases, relocate Jewish settlers to nearby land that is not privately owned, in effect creating what would be the first new West Bank settlements in years. The approach by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's right-wing coalition government appears designed to avoid the need to carry out high-profile military evictions of settlers in order to appease conservative lawmakers, who have accused Netanyahu of betraying the settlers' cause.
