Others

- The daily Israeli newspaper revealed in a report published on its website on September 14, 2011 that what is so-called “Israeli Civil Administration related to the Israeli Army is expected to begin forcefully moving Palestinian Bedouin in the West Bank to a permanent location as part of a plan to remove all the Bedouin in Area C (under both Israel's civilian and military control) from lands they have been living on for decades. The plan will eventually relocate Bedouin living in other areas of the West Bank, according to various calculations; some 27,000 Bedouin live in the West Bank, mostly in Area C. The report added that the first to be relocated will be the approximately 2,400 Bedouin living in an area east of Jerusalem, which will make it easier for Israel to implement its plan to expand the settlement of Ma'ale Adummim and other settlements to create contiguity of construction for Jews up to Jerusalem. According to the report, during the last few months, the Civil Administration and the Israel Occupation Forces have increased demolitions of lean-tos and tin huts in the encampments and have further limited the inhabitants' access to grazing lands, where at the end of July, the community of Al Baqa'a, east of Hebron, dismantled their four encampments and sought shelter on neighboring village lands after settlers attacked one of the encampments and the police arrested four Al Baqa'a residents.
