Expansion of settlements

- Attorney General Yehuda Weinstein approved a plan by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to remove the Ulpana neighborhood in Beit El and transfer the houses to a nearby former army base. According to Netanyahu's plan, the five houses built on Palestinian land in Ulpana neighborhood will be removed and relocated to military territory in the Beit El settlement, 300 new housing units will be built on military territory in settlements, and a mechanism will be formed to deal with future Palestinian claims to land in petitions to the High Court. Haaretz (June 6, 2012).

- The Israeli Knesset is due to vote on a bill geared at sanctioning illegal West Bank outposts. Netanyahu and his advisers will present Weinstein's legal opinion before the government. Others

- In a move meant to placate right-wing ministers, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said that he will head a new ministerial committee that would deal with settlement affairs. The announcement was made hours before the Knesset convened to vote on a bill aiming to legalize homes built on contested land in the West Bank. The formation of the committee would essentially rescind authority over settlement matters granted almost exclusively to Defense Minister Ehud Barak. The government is expected to discuss the structure and responsibilities of the committee early next week. Likud lawmakers have been calling for the replacement of the defense minister, accusing Barak and Kadima of pulling their party to the Left. Ynetnews (June 6, 2012).
- In a cyber-age twist on Israel's vaunted history of airport security, the country has begun to force incoming travelers deemed suspicious to open personal email accounts for inspection, visitors say. The practice appears to be aimed at rooting out visitors who have histories of pro-Palestinian activism, and in recent weeks, has led to the expulsion of at least three American women. The security procedures appear to be getting stricter: Recent searches of journalists at official events have been invasive enough to create a series of mini-uproars and walkouts –

a situation that has dovetailed with increasing concerns that the government is trying to stifle dissent. Ynetnews (June 6 2012)
