- Ministers Authorize West Bank Closures That IDF Was Already Conducting. Security cabinet decision grants military commanders power to put Palestinian villages under lockdown, but army source says the IDF never needed such authorization. The security cabinet has authorized the Israeli army to impose full closures on Palestinian villages in the West Bank while searching for suspected terrorists, a senior official in Jerusalem said Friday. However, it has emerged that the IDF hadn't needed such approval in the past .The cabinet decision taken on Thursday evening allows military commanders to decide whether to put a village under lockdown without waiting for approval from the government . But a military source confirmed that in effect, the tactical decision to put a village on lockdown is already made by military commanders on the ground. (Haaretz 27 November 2015)
