Other

- The Government Helps the Settlers Take Over a Home in Silwan. Twenty years after an official committee of inquiry rejected this policy, the state continues to help Elad settlers take over a home in Silwan. The Ruweidi family might lose their home if the court accepts the State's declaration of their house as "absentee property". In a response submitted to the Supreme Court prior to a hearing on Thursday, March 12, 2015, at the case of Elad settler organization against the Ruweidi family, the state argues that the family's home in Wadi Hilweh in Silwan is considered "an absentee property" and, consequently, the Ruweidi family which has been living in the home since before 1967, is not the owner. Keren Kayemet LeIsrael-Jewish National Fund (KKL-JNF), which comprises a link in the chain designed to transfer the properties to Elad, also presented support to the court for dispossessing the family from its property. The use of the Absentees' Property Law to evict Palestinian families from their homes in East Jerusalem was severely criticized by an official committee of inquiry in 1992 (the Klugman Committee). (Peace Now 12 March 2015)
