Other

- On Jerusalem Day last week, the cornerstone was laid for a new amphitheater on Jerusalem's Ammunition Hill (Givat Hatachmoshet), in a ceremony commemorating the 50th anniversary of one of the Six Day War's fiercest battles. Attending the ceremony was Australian-Jewish philanthropist Harry Oscar Triguboff, who is providing financial support for the project; Ammunition Hill National Memorial Site Chairman Menachem Landau; Triguboff Institute CEO Shalom Norman; Six Day War veterans, and bereaved families. The new amphitheater will serve a venue for lectures, events and ceremonies. In 2016, the 'Jerusalem Garden' which surrounds the memorial site and a special historical exhibit were inaugurated. The 2016 ceremony was attended by Jerusalem Mayor Nir Barkat and Minister of Jerusalem Affairs Zeev Elkin (Likud). (INN 1 June 2017)
