Israeli Settler Violence

- Israeli settlers planted olive trees in pasture land belonging to Palestinians in al-Farisya village, east of Tubas, in the northern Jordan Valley, raising fear among the Palestinian residents of an impending seizure of their land for the benefit of settlers. A number of settlers stormed the pasture area in al-Farisiya village, which is located near the illegal Israeli settlement of 'Rotem', and proceeded to plant dozens of olive trees, there. (IMEMC 30 March 2019)
- Israeli settlers invaded Palestinian olive orchards and grazing lands in the al-Farisiyya area in the West Bank's Northern Plains. The settlers invaded the lands, located near the Rotem settlement, and planted dozens of olive saplings in the grazing lands, which raised fears that they intend to illegally annex them to their settlement. (IMEMC 30 March 2019)

Other

- The recent Israeli military aggression on the besieged enclave resulted in complete destruction of 30 houses and partial damage to 500 others. The estimated losses following the Israeli shelling of homes and civil institutions over the past few days exceeded $2 million. The destruction also affected the surrounding buildings, which led to the displacement of hundreds of Palestinian citizens. (IMEMC 30 March 2019)
