- Nachala movement is preparing the logistics and handing out kits to groups of settler activists who will take to strategic hilltops in Area C. Nachala chairwoman Daniella Weiss: The people are behind us. A settlement activist group is planning to set up at least 28 new outposts in Judea and Samaria, three of which it plans to erect days after US President Joe Biden's visit to region this week, Israel Hayom has learned. The Nachala movement is currently coordinating hundreds of volunteers and the purchase of building equipment for three new settlement outposts, the locations of which it is keeping under wraps to avoid running afoul of the IDF Civil Administration, which permits and oversees construction in Area C. Nachala has been preparing to establish new outposts, with a target date of July 20, for some time. The group has already set up dozens of groups of new settlers and held hundreds of meetings in an attempt to enlist support. The group claims that over 1,000 activists from all over Israel have joined the initiative. Nachala chairwoman Daniella Weiss told Israel Hayom that "Now, when reports are saying that the government intends to approve Arab construction in Area C, is the time to say clearly – the Land of Israel in its entirety belongs to the Jewish people. Israel is an independent state. The entire Land of Israel is our, and we will continue to found settlements and towns throughout Judea and Samaria." According to Weiss, "The Jewish people are a healthy people. Since we started this move some weeks ago, we've encountered warmth from the public like we've never seen before. The public understands the importance of new settlements, and how much the pioneering, Zionist progress will lift the people's spirits as we continue the Zionist path up the mountain. With God's help, and with a lot of work, we're poised to break a years-long freeze, and see settlement flourish throughout Judea and Samaria." With US President Joe Biden slated to arrive this week for a visit to the region, Israel Hayom reported recently that the Israeli right is concerned that the issue of illegal Palestinian construction might be glossed over. MKs Orit Strock and Yoav Kisch, who head the Knesset Land of Israel lobby, issued a letter warning that the tolerance of illegal Palestinian construction went against coalition agreements. Meanwhile, left-wing groups are opposing Nachala's plan to kick off a new round of settlements and claim that the IDF is supporting the move. "Although the establishment of settlements is considered a war crime under international law, the Israeli military will secure the establishment of the settlements and allow them to expand and connect to water, electricity, and other services, thus helping the settlers apply pressure to surround Palestinian communities through methodic violence, so Palestinian families will leave and allow the settlers to take over their lands and property," a number of leftist groups wrote in an open letter. The groups' letter urged the Biden administration and the US Congress to "listen to the calls of Palestinian, Israeli, and American activists to condition continued US aid on stopping the involvement of Israel and its armed forces in human rights violations. The aid should be stopped as long as Israel refuses to change its behavior," the activists argued. General Director of the Betsalmo advocacy group Shay Glick said in response, "It's infuriating that the New Israel Fund supports organizations that are calling on the US president not to provide Israel with weapons, which will just put the lives of [civilians] and IDF soldiers at risk. This crosses a red line, calls for a military boycott of Israel is equivalent to calling to shut down the country. "It's time for Israel to fight the groups that are working to have in boycotted ... and not give them any more legitimacy. We will continue to fight these groups, which are putting the lives of Israeli citizens in danger," Glick said. (ISRALHAYOM 12 July 2022)

- An Israeli plan to build a Yemenite visitor center in Silwan district in Occupied Jerusalem as part of ongoing efforts to take over a neighborhood that allegedly belonged to Yemenite Jewry. The Israeli occupation authority (IOA) and the Ateret Cohanim settler group claim that the Yemenite neighborhood (Batn al-Hawa) in Silwan was founded in the late 19th century, but it was evacuated by Britain in 1938 before dozens of Palestinian families moved in. They also claim that an old Yemenite synagogue used to exist in Silwan as part of their relentless efforts to seize as many Palestinian homes and buildings as possible in the district, which is located near the Old City of Jerusalem. In 2015, Ateret Cohanim managed to evict the Jerusalemite Abu Nab family, who had been living in what this group claim to be an old Yemenite synagogue in Batn al-Hawa, and gave its house to Jewish settlers. Recently, Ateret Cohanim reached an agreement with Israeli housing minister Ze'ev Elkin and justice minister Gideon Sa'ar to allocate 4.5 million shekels to build this Yemenite visitor center, which will include a synagogue and a police monitoring station, in Batn al-Hawa neighborhood, according to the specialists. - The Israeli occupation authorities (IOA) approved a plan to construct new settlement units in the southern area of Jerusalem. The plan includes the construction of 1,446 settlement units in the Lower Aqueduct settlement in the Palestinian town of Sur Baher and between the settlements of Har Homa and Givat HaMatos. Preliminary approval to the project had been given in January, but this was a more formal one. The Israeli Interior Ministry also debated a plan called Givat Shaked for around 700 settlement units, located over the Green Line in that same area of the city, near the Palestinian neighborhoods of Shuafat and Beit Safafa. Last week, the IOA issued a new tender for the construction of 83 housing units in Givat Hamatos settlement, which is illegally built in Occupied Jerusalem. The tender came a few days after US President Joe Biden's visit to the region. Givat Hamatos was illegally built on Mount Abu Ghneim between Beit Safafa and Sur Baher neighborhoods. The new settlement plan was first promoted from 2007 to 2012, and includes the construction of about 2,600 settlement units and a hotel complex along al-Khalil Road. Israeli and Palestinian estimates suggest that about 650,000 settlers are living in 164 settlements and 116 outposts in the occupied West Bank. Under international law, all Jewish settlements in the occupied territories are considered illegal. (PALINFO 27 July 2022)

Erection of Israeli Outposts

- The Israeli occupation authorities have legalized the Mitzpe Dani settlement outpost built east of Ramallah and approved a plan to add 114 new housing units to it on an area of 150 dunums. The occupation authorities had previously avoided legalizing this settlement outpost or considering it an extension or neighborhood of an existing settlement, but today they have approved a blueprint for this outpost, thus legalizing it, which means a large area of Palestinian land, specifically in the village of Deir Dibwan, will be seized to expand the outpost and build a new settlement. The occupation authorities, through their approval of recent settlement plans, whether by building new settlements, expanding existing ones, or legalizing outposts, aim at establishing large settlement blocs on Palestinian lands, specifically in the eastern region of the West Bank close to the Jordan Valley. Mitzpe Dani settlement outpost was built in 1999 during the first term of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government. After it was built illegally, hundreds of dunums of land were declared closed areas, banning their owners from reaching them. As a matter of fact, there are dozens of agricultural outposts that were established with the aim of displacing the Bedouin communities in these areas and seizing thousands of dunums of land that the occupying governments could not confiscate by military orders, while increasing the number of settlers in the Ma'ale Mikhmas, Rimonim, Kochav Hashahar and Kochav Yaakov bloc to 60,000 settlers, which are located to the north and the north-east of Jerusalem and the closest to it. - Settlers fear Israel is weighing the retroactive legalization of Palestinian homes in Area C as a gesture to US President Joe Biden that would be announced during his visit, Yesha Council CEO Yigal Dilmoni said on Monday. “We are talking about scores of illegal Palestinian sites,” Dilmoni said, as he clarified that he did not know which specific areas were on the table. Nor, he said, had the Yesha Council be given any formal information on the matter. But Biden’s visit, for them, has underscored the fragility of Israel’s hold on Area C of the West Bank, which is under Israeli military and civilian control and comprises 60% of the West Bank. Biden has been supportive of Palestinian development of Area C and opposed Israeli construction there. United States politicians and presidents have been divided on the question of Area C. Even US President Donald Trump, however, believed that half of it should be part of the borders of a future Palestinian state. For more information, click here. (JPOST 11 July 2022)

As part of its preparations to take to additional hilltops, Nachala has distributed some 3,000 kits to future settlers that will equip them to stay in the field for as long as possible. The kits include materials for crude tents, large jerry cans for water, a portable charger, a cell phone charger, and even waterless portable toilets and portable fans. Ahead of the new outpost launch, the group carried out visits to various strategic points in Judea and Samaria and put together logistics teams and a special

- situation room that will be staffed around the clock. The settlement activists also worked to shed light on the extent of illegal Palestinian construction in Area C. (ISRAELHAYOM 11 July 2022)
- The Jerusalem District Planning and Construction Committee will discuss next Monday (18/7/22) the promotion of c. 2,000 of housing units in East Jerusalem in two new settlements: Givat Hashaked near Beit Safafa and Shorafat, and the Lower Aqueduct plan between Har Homa and Givat Hamatos. The agenda for the discussion has been published hours before President Biden's landing in Israel. Both plans are intended to strike a severe blow at the possibility of a two-state solution, and of the development of East Jerusalem as a Palestinian capital. Following the publication of the agenda in the media, the Prime Minister's office has announced that they will be taken off the agenda, but as of the evening of 12/7/22 the plans are still on the agenda at the Planning Authority's website.  - The World Zionist Organization Settlement Division is set to invest 29.5 million shekels ($8.5 million) to connect unauthorized West Bank outposts to the electricity grid and prepare master plans ahead of authorizing them as proper settlements. The money for the project, which will also cover the installation of security cameras, comes from coalition funding the Yamina party received over the past year. The transfer of the funds is part of the policy set in place by Yamina's chairman, former Prime Minister Naftali Bennett, as part of his past role as settlement affairs minister. The public can comment on the Settlement Division's plan until July 12. The budget item is a new one in the Settlement Division's work plan for 2022. Establishing electrical infrastructure in outposts requires government authorization, and the defense minister must also approve the linkup. However, a security source told Haaretz that this approval is not expected any time soon. For more information click here. (HAARETZ 12 July 2022)
 - While President Biden was reiterating his support for a two state solution at the arrival ceremony at Ben Gurion airport, the promotion of two new settlements in East Jerusalem was scheduled to be discussed soon after his departure. After Prime Minister Lapid ordered to cancel the planned discussion of the Jerusalem District Planning Committee that was supposed to take place on July 18, in order to avoid embarrassments during Biden's visit, the discussion was set for one week later, for July 25. The Planning Committee will discuss the depositing of two plans for c. 2,000 units that will strike a severe blow at the possibility of a two state solution and of the development of East Jerusalem as a Palestinian capital. The Plans, Givat Hashaked near Beit Safafa and the Lower Aqueduct plan between Har

Homa and Givat Hamatos, will bloc the last remaining corridor to connect between Beit Safafa and Shorafat and the rest of the Palestinian neighborhoods of East Jerusalem. Recall that in March 2010, during Biden's visit to Israel as Vice President, a plan for 1,600 units in Ramat Shlomo, East Jerusalem was promoted eventually leading to a crisis that undermined the entire visit. The Background to the re-scheduling of the meeting is that after Peace Now exposed the fact that the plans were to be promoted on July 18, Prime Minister Lapid declared that he ordered that the meeting of the Planning Committee will be cancelled. Following this announcement, the Right Wing Minister of Interior, Ayelet Shaked, who is in charge of the Planning Authority, declared that she would make sure that the plans WILL be promoted one week later. Today the agenda of the planning committee was published and the two plans were indeed set to be discussed on July 25. It is important to note that if it was important for PM Lapid, he can make sure that the plans will not be discussed. He can confront Minister Shaked, and if she refuses to cancel the meeting of the planning committee, he can fire her and change her decision. Such a move will not threaten his government because it is already a caretaker government and the election date is already set for November. For more information, click here. (PEACENOW 13 July 2022)

- The Israeli authorities demolished, confiscated, or forced people to demolish 51 Palestinian-owned structures in East Jerusalem and Area C of the West Bank, citing the lack of Israeli-issued building permits; four of the structures had been provided as donor-funded humanitarian aid. As a result, 40 people, including 21 children, were displaced, and the livelihoods of about 500 others were affected. Some 47 of the targeted structures were in Area C, including two structures in southern Hebron areas which are designated as 'firing zones' for military training, and where Palestinian communities are at risk of forcible transfer. On 5 July, the Israeli authorities demolished a 200-metre-long concrete wall around a water spring facility in a 'nature reserve' in Duma (Nablus), for lacking building permits; as a result, the water valve was destroyed and the water network damaged. This demolition directly affects access to water and the livelihoods of at least 22 households, comprising 132 people. Four structures were demolished in East Jerusalem, including one home destroyed by its owners to avoid paying the fines issued by Israeli authorities. (OCHA 23 July 2022)
- Israeli Education Minister Shasha Biton revoked the permanent operating licenses of six schools in east Jerusalem and replaced them with conditional temporary licenses after it was discovered that textbooks at the schools included material deemed as incitement against the State of Israel and against the so called Israeli Defense Forces (IDF). The affected schools are Ibrahimieh College, the Al-Eman elementary schools for boys and girls and the Al-Eman secondary schools for boys and girls. The principals of the schools were summoned to a hearing at the end of which it was decided to deny them their permanent operating licenses and instead give them conditional licenses which will be in effect for one year during which they will need to remove what they called as “material deemed inciting”. They will only be able to receive the permanent license again once the material is removed. (ARIJ, JPOST 29 July 2022)

- In a step aimed at depriving Palestinian prisoners and families of martyrs of receiving financial support, Israel’s security cabinet recently approved a decision to deduct 600 million shekels from tax and tariffs collected on behalf of the Palestinian Authority. This deduction will be made over the course of the coming 12 months. This amount of money is equal to the total annual funds used by the PA to support Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails and families of martyrs. (PALINFO 31 July 2022)
