- The Israeli Occupation Army prevented around 30 Palestinian farmers from 'Anin village west of Jenin from entering their lands.
- The Israeli Occupation Army prevented Palestinian farmers from working in their lands in Susyia area east of Yatta town in Hebron Governorate. The IOA declared 2000 dunums of lands owned by Abu Subha family as closed military area.

- The city of Jerusalem began works two weeks ago on a road that will connect the capital's northeastern neighborhoods to Jerusalem's main traffic artery, Menachem Begin Boulevard, as part of a policy to strengthen bonds between neighborhoods across the Green Line and the rest of the city. The settlements to be connected by the new route are Pisgat Ze'ev, Neve Yaakov, Anatot, Shoafat, and Beit Hanina; the route 20 project will also link Jerusalem's northern neighborhoods with route 443, which in some places crosses through the West Bank. Jerusalem's municipality, along with the Moriah Jerusalem Development Company, is advancing the project with an investment of over NIS 150 million. Work is expected to go on for 14 months. The next stages will see the completion of a bridge over route 50, with another bridge to be constructed over Nahal Atarot due east. Route 20 will be extended to link the latter to Beit Hanina intersection.
