Israeli Settler Violence

- The Israeli Magistrate Court in Jerusalem ordered the eviction of a Palestinian family from its home in Silwan neighborhood of occupied

East Jerusalem, for the benefit of Israeli settlers. The court gave the family, which consists of one woman and her four children, until the beginning of March to vacate its home and 500-square meter land in Silwan, under the pretext the house was bought by the settler group “Elad” more than two decades ago, from heirs to Mariam Abu Zweir, who supposedly bequeathed her house, after her death, to her eight children. The Magistrate Court issued the eviction decision prior to a session for the High Court to rule on ownership of the land. Documents were submitted to the High Court proving that the land on which the house is built belongs to the late Jamil Siam, and not to the late Abu Zweir. The court has set the 8th of next month to deliberate on the matter. Abu Zweir’s heirs explained that they had been fighting a legal battle in Israeli courts, for 22 years, to prove ownership of the house and land and to refute claims, by the Elad settler group, of ownership of the property.
