Brutality of the Israeli Occupation Army

- A female university student, studying Information Technology in Palestine Technical University – Kadoorie, in Tulkarem in northern West Bank was shot by the Israeli Occupation Army (IOA) in the college campus with a high-velocity gas bomb which struck her face, fracturing her jaw, and causing burns to her face and hand. The gas bomb also left a large rupture in her cheek. She was shot after the IOA engaged in an excessive force against students holding a nonviolent procession in solidarity with Palestinian photojournalist Moath Amarneh, who lost his left eye after being seriously injured by a rubber-coated steel bullet, fired by an army soldier. Amarneh was covering a protest against land confiscation, in the Surif region of the Hebron governorate. After being shot by the gas bomb in her face, Nagham reacted by removing the bomb which had stuck to her face, causing various wounds, including penetrating and burning the skin, creating a large cheek wound, in addition to causing upper and lower jaw fractures and burns. The IOA came from the area behind the university, her colleagues were waiting for her in front of the library, she was only ten meters away from the IOA who fired the gas bomb at her.
