They added that the Palestinians had to park their cars close to the colony due to ongoing closures and roadblocks by the Israeli army on the main road leading to Jerusalem city. The attack is not the first, especially when the colonizers burnt, a few months ago, four Palestinian cars and caused damage to many other vehicles in the same area. Meanwhile, Nasser Snubar, a farmer from Yatma village, south of the city, said that a group of settlers sneaked their way into his olive orchard, south of the village, and stole his harvesting equipment. While the olive harvest season is meant to be a celebratory time in Palestine, the joyful time has become overshadowed by Israeli land restrictions and brutal settler attacks. Settlers have recently stepped up their attacks against olive harvesters in the southern district of Nablus, attacking farmers of Burin town and preventing them from picking their olives. It is worth mentioning that the soldiers frequently invade Sebastia to accompany groups of colonialist settlers into the archeological area. During these invasions, the soldiers block all Palestinian traffic, in addition to frequently storming homes, abducting Palestinians, and attacking protesters, in addition to removing the Palestinian flag from the site. Israel is trying to claim the site is only part of its archeology, and constantly removes the Palestinian flag and its pole which extends 17 meters in the air in the al-Bayader area of the town. - Israeli settlers placed six mobile homes in an area south of Bethlehem, in the south of the occupied West Bank, as a prelude to stealing the Palestinian land, today said a local official. Ammar Hijazi, member of the village council of Wad Rahal, told WAFA that some 400 settlers from the illegal settlement of Ifrat, backed by soldiers, broke into Khillat al-Nahla area, near Wad Rahal, and placed six mobile homes and several tents in the area, which is normally a prelude to taking over the land. Last week, Israeli bulldozers leveled 10 dunums of land planted with olive saplings in the same area and demolished retaining walls and the ground foundation for a house that was being built there. Officials believe that the recent Israeli assault on that area will eventually lead to taking over a large area of Palestinian land for settlement purposes. (WAFA 23 October 2021)

- A Palestinian sustained burns and four vehicles were vandalized today in an attack by a group of Israeli settlers on olive harvesters near the town of Turmus Ayya, north of Ramallah city in the occupied West Bank, local sources said. Awad Abu Samra, a local anti-colonization activist, told WAFA that a group of around 20 Israeli settlers from an adjacent settlement outpost attacked Palestinian families harvesting olives in their own lands east of the town and sprayed at least one farmer with pepper spray, causing him burns in the face. The farmer required medical treatment. The attacking settlers also set fire to a car and vandalized and punctured the tires of other parked cars belonging to the Palestinian families harvesting the olives. Over the past three weeks, Israeli settlers have committed violent daily attacks against Palestinian villages and farmers harvesting their olive trees. The attacks, which include beatings of farmers and destruction of trees, preceded the formal start of the olive harvest season in early October in the occupied West Bank but intensified in number over the past three weeks. The most targeted areas have been in the north and center of the occupied West Bank. While settler attacks are a frequent, near-daily reality for Palestinian villages, the number and intensity of attacks increase during the olive harvest season, which runs until November, as settlers target families working on their lands. The olive harvest is one of the most important seasons for thousands of Palestinian households in the occupied territories whose income depends heavily on the success of this season. Israel demolishes Palestinian houses and structures almost on a daily basis as a means to achieve "demographic control" of the occupied territories. Israel denies planning permits for Palestinians to build on their own land or to extend existing houses to accommodate natural growth, particularly in Jerusalem and Area C, which constitutes 60 percent of the occupied West Bank and falls under full Israeli military rule, forcing residents to build without obtaining rarely-granted permits to provide shelters for their families. In contrast, Israel argues that building within existing colonial settlements is necessary to accommodate the “natural growth” of settlers. Therefore, it much more easily gives the estimated 700,000 Jewish Israeli settlers there building permits and provides them with roads, electricity, water and sewage systems that remain inaccessible to many neighboring Palestinians. - Israeli forces destroyed, Sunday, a Palestinian-owned home in Lod city, southeast of Tel Aviv in central Israel, the lands occupied in 1948, Quds News Network reported. Israeli soldiers accompanied bulldozers to the Al-Mahatta neighborhood, blockaded roads leading to the home and proceeded to demolish a house belonging to Palestinian citizen Ibrahim Touri, under the pretext of building without an Israeli issued permit. (IMEMC 31 October 2021)

- Israeli occupation forces confiscated today evening a water tank belonging to one of the Palestinian residents in the village of al-Khader to the south of the occupied southern West Bank district of Bethlehem, according to local youth activist Ahmad Salah. He told Wafa Israeli forces seized a water tank belonging to local resident Suleiman Salah in the village of al-Kahder, south of Bethlehem. Israeli forces have recently intensified their attacks against Palestinian farmers in Bethlehem, through the issuance of demolition orders against agricultural structures and bans on land rehabilitation, and the razing of various roads. Expansion of Israeli Settlements

- A new Israeli plan to build 104 housing units in the settlement of Gilo, southeast of Occupied Jerusalem. Karta real estate company would build these units and several commercial structures, and the new settlement expansion project is expected to cost hundreds of millions of shekels. Karta chairman Amichai Neiman described the project as “strategically important” as “it would be located at one of the highest points of the holy city, along the light railway and with a breathtaking view. - On October 13, the Local Planning Committee approved expropriation of lands designated for public use in the Givat Hamatos area for the construction of roads, public buildings and the development of open space for the planned new settlement/neighborhood. The funding comes from the Arim Company, which belongs to the Ministry of Construction and Housing. While expropriation of public lands in lead up to the establishment of a new neighborhood is standard procedure, such a step indicates that construction of the tendered 1257 housing units is imminent. A once longstanding international redline due to its sealing-off effect of the southern perimeter of East Jerusalem from the West Bank, Givat Hamatos is slated to become the first new settlement/neighborhood built over the Green Line in Jerusalem in over two decades. (IR-AMIM 13 October 2021)

- Today, the Jerusalem Local Planning Committee advanced a new outline plan (TPS 977964) for a Wadi Joz business park designated for 78 dunams in the area of Wadi Joz. This should not be confused with the East District Plan, a separate, but equally as problematic, outline plan for a locale adjacent to the area in the Wadi Joz plan. Today's session at the Local Planning Committee marks the first stage in the planning process needed to approve the Wadi Joz plan. Known as the "Silicon Wadi" plan, the municipality has engaged in major publicity surrounding its intent to transform the Wadi Joz commercial area into a large industrial high-tech hub ostensibly for the benefit of East Jerusalem Palestinians. The plan, however, involves the eviction and/or demolition of many of the existing Palestinian businesses and buildings along the main commercial street in Wadi Joz and has been met with strong opposition from East Jerusalem residents, particularly those who stand to be affected. According to the provisions of the plan, the construction will include complexes from 8-14 stories high, the majority of which is designated for office and commercial space. Only 10% of the construction area will be allotted for residential use, while the plan itself only includes 166 housing units. The plan likewise entails construction of a wide boulevard, which will be built at the expense of the currently built-up area. Beyond the devastating impact of widespread demolitions of existing businesses and structures, the plan also raises concerns that the Israeli authorities will exploit the planning procedures to locate alleged Palestinian absentee properties and transfer lands into the hands of the State. It should also be noted that while Israel focuses on bolstering employment and economic activity in East Jerusalem, it simultaneously continues to suppress residential development in Palestinian neighborhoods. As with nearly all outline plans advanced in East Jerusalem in recent years, the Wadi Joz business park plan only allocates a marginal amount for residential use, which hardly meets the acute housing needs of the Palestinian population. Rather than undertaking measures to rectify the housing crisis, these plans only exacerbate the current situation and perpetuate the residential planning stranglehold, which ultimately serves to push Palestinians out of the city. (IR-AMIM 13 October 2021)

- In parallel to the aforementioned developments, on October 13, the Local Planning Committee recommended for deposit a new outline plan (TPS 759894) for 470 housing units in Pisgat Ze'ev. Although promoted as an urban renewal project for the existing built-up area, in practice, the plan will expand the settlement/neighborhood eastward towards the Separation Barrier and the area of Hizma, depleting the few remaining open land reserves in the area. These various developments are neither isolated nor independent of one another, but rather part and parcel of a concerted and coordinated attempt to predetermine the endgame of the conflict by undermining conditions necessary for a negotiated political resolution. It is therefore vital that measures are undertaken to block these lethal processes in this narrow window of time. the areas in red mark the major settlement advancements that threaten the remaining viability of a two-state framework. (IR-AMIM 13 October 2021)
- The Israeli Jerusalem municipality on Wednesday approved the seizure of a large area (200 dunams) in East Jerusalem to construct a colonial settlement in violation of international law and signed agreements. This marks the latest stage of the Israeli government's long-planned 'E1 Jerusalem' plan to take over and steal most of East Jerusalem from its Palestinian inhabitants, encircle Jerusalem with Jewish-only settlements, and isolate and displace the Palestinians who remain. Israeli officials originally attempted to carry out the illegal land seizure in 2014, but lacked the full support of the US, and faced criticism from the international community, so didn't carry out the takeover. Now, following four years of massive expansion of Israeli colonies and theft of Palestinian land while the Trump regime was in power in the US, the Israeli government has been emboldened to carry out more blatant land seizures in direct violation of international law. On Wednesday, as the Israeli Jerusalem municipality was announcing the approval of the Givat HaMatos settlement colony, Israeli Foreign Minister Yair Lapid was exchanging niceties with US Vice president Kamala Harris in Washington DC. Lapid praised Harris for "supporting Israel throughout the years" and for being "one of Israel's best friends". According to an article in the Israel Policy Forum by Evan Gottesman earlier this year, "Givat Hamatos threatens to isolate the Palestinian East Jerusalem neighborhoods of Beit Safafa and Sharafat from the rest of the city, disrupting the contiguity of a future Palestinain [sic] capital, as well as the connection between East Jerusalem and the West Bank. Moreover, the tender put forth by the Israeli government for Givat Hamatos reserves 40% of new units for recipients of state-subsidized housing. Citizenship is a requirement for this benefit, thus leaving out nearly all East Jerusalem Palestinians, who only hold Israeli residency [Palestinians in Jerusalem are considered ‘residents’ in their own homeland, with no citizenship, since Israeli authorities are trying to get them to leave, to be able to take their land and homes]. All of this complements the Trump plan, which restricted a prospective Palestinian capital to two small areas east of the Israel-West Bank barrier.” One of the Jerusalem municipality Committee members who approved the project Wednesday, Yehuda Freudliger, stated, “I was happy today to be a partner in advancing the construction plan of Givat Hamatos. Jerusalem craves land for construction, Givat Hamatos is an ideal place that does not harm nature and is close to existing neighborhoods. All lovers of Jerusalem and lovers of the environment and protecting nature should do everything possible to promote the plan and not let political pressures delay it.” The construction of the new settlement of up to 2,600 housing units will isolate and surround the remaining Palestinian neighborhoods in Jerusalem, preventing them from being able to access the West Bank. Israel’s approval of the settlement on Wednesday was condemned by European Union Foreign Minister Joseph Burrell, who said the new settlement in this crucial location will “hurt the chances of establishing a Palestinian state with territorial continuity”. - Settler leader Yossi Dagan has revealed that a major transportation project for Jewish settlers would be finished soon near the settlement of Rehelim, south of Nablus in the occupied West Bank. In Facebook remarks, Dagan said that the project, which is also located near the military checkpoint of Zaatara, would cost around 40 million shekels. According to Dagan, who works as head of the so-called Shomron regional council, the project contains 300 bus stations, one gas station, one car wash, several office buildings and other service facilities. These bus stations will be used to transport Jewish settlers between different areas in the north of the West Bank, the northern Jordan Valley, southern Palestine and Tel Aviv. (PALINFO 16 October 2021)

- As reported previously, two sessions for discussion of objections on the E1 plans for some 3400 housing units were scheduled for October 4 and October 18. Due to the exclusion of Palestinians from the first session on October 4, the planned discussion ultimately did not take place in the appropriate manner. As a result, the Civil Administration announced on Tuesday that it will schedule an additional session for the plan on November 8. This time, both sessions (on October 18 and November 4) will be held virtually and in-person to accommodate those without access to electricity and/or internet. Construction in E1 has long been considered a game-changer in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict as it will bisect the West Bank and detach it from East Jerusalem, dealing a death blow to the prospects of a two-state framework with two capitals in Jerusalem. Despite these disastrous ramifications, the Israeli government is hurdling towards approval of this new settlement with seemingly little opposition. (IR-AMIM 18 October 2021)

- Israel Hayom newspaper has revealed an Israeli plan to double the number of Jewish settlers across the Jordan Valley, east of the occupied West Bank. According to the newspaper, the Israeli government intends to double the number of settler families to around 3,000 within four years and will allocate 90 million shekels ($28 million) for that purpose. "The construction and housing ministry is drafting a resolution seeking to double the number of Israeli residents in the Jordan Valley," it said. "The resolution will be presented to the government only after the national budget is approved by the Knesset, but before the end of the 2021 work year, Israel Hayom quoted senior government officials as saying. The prime minister's office, the finance ministry and the interior ministry also worked on the joint resolution, it added. Currently, some 1,500 settler families live in the Jordan Valley – most of them in small communities, according to the newspaper. It pointed out that the plan does not propose creating new communities, rather expanding the existing ones. "The Jordan Valley, similar to the Golan Heights and the other areas along Israel's eastern strip, is of vital strategic importance to the security of the country and its future and is an inseparable part of the Zionist vision," housing and construction minister Ze'ev Elkin told the newspaper. "Following the plan to double the number of residents on the Golan, now it is the turn of the Jordan Valley, which is also part of the national consensus," he added. (PALINFO 20 October 2022)

The Higher Planning Council of the Civil Administration (HPC) will convene on Wednesday, 27/10/21, for approving 30 plans for 2,860 units in the settlements, and on Monday 1/11/21, it will discuss the approval of 6 plans with 1,303 units for Palestinians in Area C. In August the HPC was supposed to discuss plans in the settlements and in Palestinian villages but the meeting was canceled due to a strike declared by the workers of the Civil Administration. While in August the agenda for the settlements included 21 plans with 1,956 units, to the coming discussion 9 plans with nearly 1000 units were added. - The Israeli occupation authority (IOA) declared Sunday that it will call for tenders for the construction of 1,355 new settlement units in the West Bank. Israeli media sources had earlier revealed a new plan for the construction of more than 3,000 settlement units in the West Bank's Area C. The plan is scheduled to be approved next Wednesday. It will be the first time settlement units are approved during the US president Joe Biden's administration and the current Israeli government. Israeli media have also reported that the Israeli Construction and Housing Minister Zeev Elkin is set to press ahead with a plan to double the number of Jewish settlers in the Jordan Valley. "Strengthening and expanding Jewish settlements in Judea and Samaria (West Bank) is a necessary and very important thing in the vision of the Zionist enterprise,” the Israeli minister said in a statement on the Walla News website. “After a long period of stagnation in construction in Judea and Samaria, I welcome the marketing of over 1,000 housing units. The West Bank, including Eastern Jerusalem, is regarded as "occupied territory" under international law, making all Jewish settlements illegal. (PALINFO 25 October 2021)

- Israel approved today the construction of thousands of new settlement units in the occupied West Bank. The higher planning council, the Israeli body that approves planning and construction in West Bank settlements, approved today the construction of the 3144 new settlement units in the West Bank. This announcement came after the decision to postpone the approval in light of the pressures exerted by the US administration on the Israeli occupation government, as Washington announced its rejection of settlement expansion in the West Bank. The US Department of State yesterday expressed its "grave concern" over Israel's plans to move forward with the construction of new settlements and its strong rejection of such an approach which harms the prospect of the two-state solution. On Sunday, Israeli occupation authorities issued tenders for the construction of around 1,355 new settler homes in illegal West Bank settlements. (Wafa 27 October 2021)
- Israeli authorities authorized, on Wednesday, 3,144 additional colonial settlement units for construction in the occupied West Bank, the Palestinian News and Information Agency (Wafa) reported. The US State Department condemned the plans, expressing its distress at Israel's plans for the expansion of illegal settlements in the West Bank, illegal under International Law. Furthermore, on Sunday, Israeli authorities issued proposals for the construction of 1,355 new colonial units, which has drawn harsh criticism from the European Union, the Arab League, and the Egyptian Foreign Ministry. In a statement, Tuesday, a spokesperson for the European Union (EU) denounced the issuance of tenders (bids) for 1,355 new units “Settlements are illegal under international law and constitute a major obstacle to the achievement of the Two-State solution and a just, lasting, and comprehensive peace between the parties,” said the statement. “We call upon the Government of Israel to halt settlement construction and to not proceed with the announced tenders,” the statement concluded. Moreover, on Tuesday, the Egyptian Foreign Ministry issued a statement condemning Israel's colonial schemes, demanding that the occupation state cease the unilateral acts which threaten the prospect of peace, and the hope for a future Palestinian state. The Arab League criticized, on Monday, the authorities' decision to issue bids for the 1,355 new colonial units and the approval of the construction of 3,144 more illegal settlement units. (PEACENOW 28 October 2021)

Israeli Military Orders

- Israeli authorities today notified of its intentions to seize dozens of dunums of land belonging to Palestinians in the village of Yasuf, east of the West Bank city of Salfit, as a prelude to expanding a nearby illegal settlement, according to a local official. Head of al-Yasuf village council, Abdallah 'Abiyya, said Israeli forces delivered a number of notices for the seizure of around 40-dunums of land belonging to Palestinians in the area for the benefit of expanding the nearby illegal Israeli settlement of Taffouh. - Israeli occupation authorities today issued an order to raze the recently built road connecting town of Yabad and the village of Khirbet Emreha, southwest of the occupied northern West Bank city of Jenin, local sources said. Samer Abu Baker, head of the Yabad municipality, told Wafa that the road was built two months ago to facilitate students' access to their schools and farmers and workers to their farms and places of work. He added that Israel sabotages all development projects in that area, practices collective punishment through its daily raiding of homes and detentions, as well as closing side roads, suffocating the town's economy and stealing more of its lands in favor of illegal settlements. - The Israeli occupation authority (IOA) on Wednesday ordered a Jerusalemite citizen to evacuate his home and land in the holy city neighborhood of Sheikh Jarrah as a prelude to seizing the property to carry out a settler project. According to local sources, the Israeli municipality gave Mahmoud Salhya until Thursday, October 14, to evacuate his home in order to demolish it and build a school for Jewish settlers in its place. Salhya affirmed that he owns papers proving his ownership of the six dunums of land his house was built on, adding that the IOA had decided two years ago to appropriate his land at the pretext of using it to carry out a public project. In another incident, Israeli bulldozers on Wednesday demolished a Palestinian two-story

Local official Aref Daraghmeh said that the IOF bulldozed parts of a paved road in the northeast of Tayasir village, east of Tubas, as part of its efforts to disconnect Palestinian communities and hamlets in the region from each other. Meanwhile, the IOF handed Palestinian citizens stop-work orders against four unfinished structures to be used for agricultural purposes in Artas village, south of Bethlehem, claiming they were built with no permits. Palestinians in their occupied territories are forced to build without permits due to the Israeli refusal to grant them building permits or approve zoning plans for their areas. - Israeli occupation authorities notified to stop the construction work on 12 houses in the village of Duma to the south of the northern occupied West Bank district of Nablus, according to a local activist. Ghassan Daghlas, who monitors Israeli settlement activities in the north of the West Bank, said Israeli forces stormed Duma village and handed residents notices ordering them to stop the construction work on 12 houses that are still under construction, under the pretext they were built in Area C, which is under full Israeli rule, and without an Israeli permit. Israel denies planning permits for Palestinians to build on their own land or to extend existing houses to accommodate natural growth, particularly in occupied East Jerusalem and in Area C, which constitutes 60 percent of the occupied West Bank and falls under full Israeli military rule, forcing residents to build without obtaining rarely-granted permits to provide shelters for their families. - On Thursday, Israeli forces stopped the construction of a home in Nahalin town, west of Bethlehem, and seized equipment including a concrete pump and mixer. The troops were accompanied by members of the 'Israeli Civil Administration', which serves as the unelected government that inflicts martial law upon the Palestinian living under Israel's military occupation in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and Golan Heights. The 'Israeli Civil Administration' members issued a notice to the Palestinian landowner, ordering him to stop construction of the home – despite the fact that it was being constructed on the Palestinian owner's land, and in accordance with all construction regulations. Israeli authorities in this case, as in thousands of other cases, claimed that the home was being "constructed without a permit". But Israeli authorities have not issued permits for any Palestinian home construction since they began their military occupation of the West Bank, Gaza Strip and Golan Heights in 1967. The Deputy head of the Nahalin Municipal Office, Hani Fonoun, told reporters from the Palestinian news agency Wafa that the notice was issued to stop construction on the 120 square-meter house, located east of the town. He added that the soldiers also seized a concrete pump and a mixer from the construction site. The area in question is an area that Israeli authorities hope to annex as part of the 'Jerusalem E1' Plan, which involves the takeover of hundreds of acres of Palestinian land in order to create a 'circle of settlements' around Jerusalem, to attempt to take over the city of Jerusalem in violation of international law and signed agreements. (IMEMC 28 October 2021)
- Israeli soldiers distributed, on Wednesday, stop-work and demolition orders to several buildings and a water well in the southern occupied West Bank village of Wadi Rahhal, south of Bethlehem, a local source reported. Sources told the Palestinian News and Information Agency (WAFA) that the army handed out demolition orders to a residential building, four agricultural sheds and two barracks belonging to local Palestinian residents, under the standard pretext of building without a permit. Furthermore, Israeli forces delivered stop-work orders to two under-construction homes and a water well owned by local residents. In nearby Artas village, residents were ordered to stop-work on their lands, southwest of Bethlehem in southern West Bank. The occupation authorities frequently order the destruction of Palestinian-owned homes while allowing the development of colonial settlement units, deemed illegal under International Law. Confiscation & Razing of lands

- Israeli soldiers bulldozed, Wednesday, ten Dunams of Palestinian lands, planted with olive saplings, near Wad Rahhal village, south of Bethlehem in the occupied West Bank. Hasan Breijyya, the head of the Bethlehem office of the Wall & Colonization Resistance Commission, stated that the Israeli soldiers, accompanied by bulldozers, invaded the Khallet an-Nahla area near Wad Rahhal, before bulldozing and uprooting 10 Dunams planted with olive saplings. He added that the uprooted orchards are owned by a local farmer, identified as Ibrahim Obeyyat. In addition, the soldiers demolished the foundations of an under-construction home and several retaining walls in the same area. Breijyya denounced the escalating Israeli violation and said they are all part of Israel's ongoing attempt to build and expand its illegal colonies on stolen Palestinian lands. - An Israeli military force on Monday staged a limited incursion into the Gaza Strip from the territory's southern border. Local sources said that the force had entered the Al-Fukhari town east of Khan Younis to the south of the Gaza City, combing and razing the area. Israeli reconnaissance planes, meanwhile, hovered over the area at low altitudes, the sources added. Israeli troops had also fired across the border into Palestinian territory, although no injuries were reported. However, local farmers were forced to leave the area. (PALINFO 25 October 2021)

Local monitor of Israel's illegal colonial schemes, Ghassan Daghlis, told Palestinian News and Information Agency (WAFA) that soldiers stormed the village and handed stop work orders to the owners of the twelve under-construction homes. Erection of Israeli checkpoints

- The Israeli occupation Army (IOA) set up a roadblock near Silat ad-Dhahr town, south of Jenin, and obstructed the movement of vehicles. The Israeli measure caused a heavy build-up of traffic in both directions of the road. (PALINFO 11 October 2021)

Israeli Closures

- The Israeli Occupation Army (IOA) placed large rocks to close a road near Ya'bad town, west of the northern West Bank city of Jenin, and installed a roadblock on a nearby road before stopping cars and interrogating the Palestinians. The IOA, accompanied by bulldozers, invaded an area near the Emreiha area, south of Ya'bad town, and installed the rocks to close a minor road leading to large areas of Palestinian lands and various surrounding areas. The IOA forced the Palestinians to leave the area, after alleging it is now a closed zone, without providing any explanation. The closed road is essential because it links between various villages and towns, and also leads to Tulkarem. The closed road also isolated 6000 Dunams of Palestinian olive orchards in the Emreiha area. The closure of the road also forced schoolchildren to climb the rocks just to be able to return home from school. The soldiers also installed a roadblock on the Kafrit-Ya'bad junction, leading to the Dothan military roadblock, before stopping and searching dozens of cars, and interrogated the Palestinians while inspecting their ID cards. - The Israeli Occupation Army (IOA) closed The road linking Tubas and the northern Jordan Valley, restricting locals' movement. - The Israeli authorities closed on Friday several streets in Occupied Jerusalem, restricting Palestinian movement. The Israeli restrictions came in preparation for the annual Jerusalem marathon held today between the hours of 6:00 A.M. and 2:00 P.M. The participants raised Israeli flags while running near Palestinian neighborhoods in total provocation to local residents. The Palestinian activist Muhammad Abu Al-Homs said that the Israeli marathon is a Judaization political event, and not just a sport event. The Israeli municipality seeks to promote the occupied city of Jerusalem as a Jewish city as part of its Judaization policies, he said. It aims, he further added, to wipe out the city's Arab and Islamic identity. For his part, head of the Jerusalem Anti-Judaization Committee Nasser Al-Hedmi described the event as an Israeli Judaization project. He also warned of its serious implications as it allows Jewish extremists' break-ins into Palestinian neighborhoods and towns, while Palestinian movement is totally restricted. The West Bank, including Occupied Jerusalem, is regarded as "occupied territory" under international law, making all Jewish settlers' presence illegal. (PALINFO 29 October 2021)
- Israeli soldiers injured, on Saturday evening, many Palestinians in Bab az-Zawiya area, in the center of Hebron city, in the southern part of the occupied West Bank; the soldiers also closed the Ibrahimi Mosque in the city to all Palestinians. Media sources said the soldiers closed the main the Be'er as-Sabe' road leading to the central market in Bab az-Zawiya and prevented the Palestinians from entering the area to allow groups of fanatic colonizers to march there. They added that many Palestinians protested the closure before the soldiers fired many rubber-coated steel bullets, gas bombs, and concussion grenades. Medical sources in Hebron said a teenage boy was shot with a rubber-coated steel bullet, and dozens of Palestinians suffered the effects of tear gas inhalation in addition to cuts and bruises. In related news, the soldiers closed the Ibrahimi Mosque to all Muslims and visitors, and prevented the Muslims from praying in the holy site to allow groups of Israeli colonizers to pray and visit the mosque marking the "Feast of Sarah." Furthermore, the colonizers also assaulted many Palestinians in the Jaber neighborhood in Hebron, and maced them with pepper spray, causing some burns to the face of one child. In addition, the colonizers hurled trash at members of the local Jaber family and yelled insults at them while Israeli soldiers stood and watched without intervening. (IMEMC 31 October 2021)
