- Israeli troops attacked Palestinian civilians near Nablus, shooting thirteen with rubber-coated steel bullets and one with live ammunition near dawn. The confrontation took place when Israeli soldiers invaded the holy site of Joseph's Tomb east of Nablus. Joseph's Tomb, believed to be the location where the prophet Joseph was buried, has been venerated by Samaritans since the second century CE. A community of several hundred Samaritans have lived continuously in the hills outside Nablus for 2,000 years – although they practice Judaism, they are Arabic-speaking and are not accepted by Israel as a Jewish tribe. The site has become, in recent years, a place of pilgrimage for Israeli Jewish settlers, many of whom attack Palestinians on their way into and out of what they consider to be a holy site. Some Jewish theological scholars have pointed out, “the patriarch Joseph was not an Israelite hero who became Egyptianised, but an Egyptian divinity who was Hebraised”. - Israel's top court Wednesday gave the army the green light to forcibly expel the residents of Masafer Yatta communities in the southern West Bank district of Hebron. Israel's High Court ruled in favor of the forcible displacement of some 1,300 Palestinians living in twelve villages or hamlets making up the Masafer Yatta area, which relies heavily on animal husbandry as the main source of livelihood, marking one of the largest expulsions carried out by the State of Israel in recent decades. The court published the ruling on Wednesday overnight, just ahead of Israel's so-called "Independence Day", Israel's "Independence Day", which saw the ethnic cleansing of 750,000 to one million indigenous Palestinians 74 years ago and turning them into refugees to establish a Jewish-majority state in Palestine, striking down the petition submitted by Masafer Yatta families against a 1981 military order designating the area Firing Zone 918. The court's move effectively leads to the confiscation of over 35,000 dunams of land, where agricultural communities have lived for generations, to consolidate colonial settlement construction in the area. Located in Area C of the West Bank, under full Israeli administrative and military control, the area has been subjected to repeated Israeli violations by settlers and soldiers targeting their main source of living – livestock. It has been designated as a closed Israeli military zone for training since the 1980s and is accordingly referred to as Firing Zone 918. Israeli violations against the area include the demolition of animal barns, homes, and residential structures. Issuance of construction permits by Israel to local Palestinians in the area is non-existent. Masafer Yatta mayor, Nidal Younes, said that the court has ignored all evidence, all the facts and evidence submitted by the families over the last 22 years showing that they have been permanently residing in the area since before the 1980s. - Israeli occupation authorities announced the illegal annexation of 22,000 dunums of Palestinian-owned land to the south of Jericho city in the occupied West Bank, according to local sources. Younes Jaafar, a Palestinian rights activist, told Wafa that the land expropriated by the Israeli military order belongs to the village of Sawahra al-Sharqiya, and is part of the Israeli colonial project E1. The project, initiated first in 2012, is aimed at isolating Jerusalem from the rest of the West Bank and disrupting the territorial contiguity between the northern and southern parts of the West Bank. Muayyad Shaaban, the Head of the Palestinian Authority's Settlement and Wall Resistance Commission, condemned the Israeli announcement of the expropriation of 22,000 dunums of Palestinian land. Shaaban said the latest Israeli expropriation order was aimed to impose a fait accompli on the land by changing its features, as well as further dividing the West Bank and turning it into unconnected cantons, thus preventing the establishment of a geographically contiguous and sovereign Palestinian state. Israel uses the Absentee Property Law to claim the lands it forced the Palestinians to abandon in the 1948 and 1967 wars. It also deploys a range of tactics to declare all unregistered lands – left out by the Ottoman and British occupiers and believed to be two-thirds of the West Bank – as possible “state” land. Palestinian lands are also confiscated in the name of archaeological and tourism purposes, and if they are bought from Palestinians, it is almost always through coercive measures, according to the Israeli rights group Peace Now. The announcement indicated that the final approval also includes 2,536 housing units in the following settlements: 364 for Dolev, 114 for Ma'aleh Michmash, 534 units for Shvuet Rachel, 168 for Neria, 136 for Givat Ze'ev, 40 for Efrat, 92 for Zofim, 64 for Revava, 107 for Tal Menashe, 761 for the Beitar Illit, and 156 for Kiryat Arba. The approval of these settlement projects comes within the framework of political trade-offs between the far-right political parties in Israel to ensure the existence of the current government headed by Naftali Bennett, under the pretext that the Knesset members from Yamina party have required the approval of these projects in order to avoid resigning from the government coalition. Moreover, the expected approval of settlement projects came in light of the support of Israeli Prime Minister Naftali Bennett for Jewish settlement crimes, as on 05 April 2022, he said during a visit to the security service's regional command in the West Bank: "Construction is ongoing and will continue in Judea and Samaria. Freezing will not be here." (IMEMC 6 May 2022)

Israeli Closures

- The Israeli army Wednesday morning obstructed Palestinians' free movement close to Uyoun al-Haramiya checkpoint, north of Ramallah, according to Wafa correspondent. He said that Israeli soldiers stopped Palestinian commuters passing through the area on their way between the West Bank cities of Ramallah and Nablus, inspecting their vehicles and checking their identity cards. The soldiers were part of a sizable military force deployed to ensure protection of hundreds of settlers who gathered in the area, located on the Ramallah-Nablus Road. - An Israeli settler called for demolishing the Dome of the Rock in the Aqsa Mosque in Occupied Jerusalem. The leader of Israeli settler group Lehava, Bentzi Gopstein, has voiced calls for the destruction of the Dome of the Rock while calling on Jewish settlers to take part in the annual so-called flag march later this month in the Old City of Jerusalem. Israeli settlers have renewed calls for mass participation in the flag march and similar activities aiming at boosting Judaization plans in the holy city. The so-called Jewish temple mount groups call for organizing mass storming of the Al-Aqsa Mosque on Jewish religious occasions. (PALINFO 17 May 2022)
- The Israeli occupation authority (IOA) has given permission for the far-right settler groups to march through the heart of the main Palestinian thoroughfare in Jerusalem's Old City. The march would take place on May 29 along its "customary route" through Damascus Gate. Each year, thousands of Israeli far-right groups participate in the march, waving Israeli flags, singing songs and in some cases, chanting anti-Arab slogans, as they pass by Palestinian onlookers and businesses. The march is meant to celebrate Israel's occupation of Jerusalem in the 1967 war. The decision was made after consultations with the police, in a move that threatens to re-ignite violence in the holy city. (PALINFO 19 May 2022)
- An Israeli appeal court overturned a ruling by a lower magistrate court which had stirred Palestinian anger by questioning the legality of barring Jewish prayer at al-Aqsa Mosque. The court's order overturned the Israeli Magistrate court's decision which was issued last Sunday, allowing Jewish settlers to perform Talmudic rituals during their provocative raids into the al-Aqsa Mosque. The court order considered intoning Jewish prayer "does not raise worry of harm befalling national security, public safety or individual security". However, a counter-appeal was submitted with Jerusalem District Court, which overturned the Magistrate's ruling. (PALINFO 26 May 2022)
