The soldiers surrounded the home of a former political prisoner, Ala Omar Zakarna, for several hours before storming the property and abducting him. The invasion led to protests before the soldiers fired a barrage of live fire, rubber-coated steel bullets, gas bombs, and concussion grenades. The soldiers shot seven Palestinians with live fire, including one who was in the head and another who was shot in the abdomen. The invasion lasted for many hours and disrupted the lives of the Palestinians, including schools, especially due to the large number of soldiers deployed in many neighborhoods and main streets in the town.
